Vienna-

I am in the old and once-beautiful City of Vienna, and being here makes me feel old myself-and reminiscent. This was once the gayest and most frivolous capital in the world. Your grandfather, Count Gizycki, lived here for a time and when he died he requested is his will that he be buried in his red hunting jacket. That perhaps, was symbolic of those carefree, never-to-be-forgotten days of the Hapsburgs when a very privilege few rode to hounds, danced in great castles along the Danube, and enjoyed life at the expense of the un-privileged thousands. Vienna holds many memories for me. I was first here in 1920, shortly after the last war, when the city was being looted by the Italians but was still relatively gay. The Viennese seemed able to smile, the cafes were crowded, the opera was in full swing and I had a marvelous time. I even fell in love with an American lady whose name I cannot now remember. That really shows I am getting old.

Then I came back in 1923, when I was a young newspaperman and you had not entered my life. Vienna was still hungry but still fairly gay and I remember sitting in a cafe, listening to a forty-piece orchestra play "Yes, We Have No Bananas." That song dates the trip.

I was interviewing Europe's twelve greatest men. Personally I didn't think that some of them were so great - such as Mussolini-but it was an assignment and my editors thought differently. Anyway, in Vienna, I interviewed President Hainisch and Chancellor Seipel, the latter being very busy and not at all anxious to see me. President Hainisch was more gracious but I remembered getting lost in the maze of corridors leading to his office and being out of breath and afraid that I would be terribly late. That was 28 years ago. Since then another war has intervened, another defeat for Austria, another post-war period when her people must begin to rebuild the ruins of their shattered lives. Today, Vienna is like a once beautiful woman, broken, tired, pathetic, unabashedly peddling her virtue in the

Air Parade, Free Rides For Vets Is Feature Of V-Day

Planes will fly in parade formation over Escanaba Wednesday afternoon as the V-J Day celebration honoring World War II veterans gets under way with a parade down Ludington street at 2:30 o'clock, it was announced yesterday by Walter Arntzen of Pioneer Aviation. Nine planes will take part in the demonstration of precision and formation flying. Arntzen said. The DOCTOR A FACE

7 OU don't know him - you never will. He's a government doctor - created by Title II of the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill. He's paid by the government, supported by new taxes. He works for the government . . . not for you. He works on a forty hour week, time and a half for overtime. He is interested in who can help him politically - not in whom he can help medically.

The Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill, currently being studied by the U. S. Senate Committee on Education and Labor, encourages the progressive doctor to become a lazy doctor. It gives him an assured income as long as he doesn't take any chances. Political medicine penalizes the active, hard-working, daring doctor by paying a premium for mediocrity - ask any veteran, or one of the returned doctors who has been practicing state medicine for the past three or four

LARGE SURVEY NOT PLANNED

Development On Local Level Is Advocated By U. P. Planners

Marquette - Believing enough general information already is available, the technical committee of the Michigan planning commission concluded its two-day deliberations in Marquette by deciding against advocating an overall eco-nomic survey of the Upper Peninsula and recommended that a development program, based on plans already prepared, be initiated on the "local level."

The committee, named to determine whether adequate inventories of U. P. resources have been made to base definite recommendations for development, suggested that any further study in specific fields be carried out with a view to an operational program and that certain areas be selected for putting constructive projects

In general, the group expressed opinion that for many fields adequate data already has been recorded, so that some developmen plans could be started. Data is definitely lacking in other fields it was believed, and limited "inventories" could be made there before any extensive plans of development on a Peninsula-wide scale are drawn up.

Further, it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that local details of development should originate with and be advanced by local communities, rather than be imposed from outside the area. The planning commission can aid local groups in their plans, but cannot impose any schemes for
